

'Outside The Box' Workshops, by students for students

King Edward VI Handsworth Grammar Schools for Girls

What is this showcase about?

Students at King Edward VI Handsworth Grammar School for Girls have created "Outside the Box" workshops, designed and delivered by students for students. The workshops help students understand neurodiversity and explore practical strategies to manage challenges they may experience. The school has developed a strong culture of SEND co-production, recognised through being a finalist in the NASEN Awards for SEND Co-Production.

Expect to see...

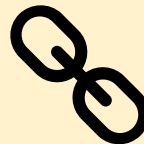

- Students and staff explaining the idea behind the workshops
- Students and staff sharing how the workshops support understanding and confidence
